Benefits of the Insurance Information Exchange (IIEX) Platform

Firms exchange more than 16 million insurance policy records daily using large data batch files and multiple proprietary feeds. Managing so many policies, in so many places, throughout the entire lifecycle of insurance products can become time-consuming, challenging and risky. Firms can use an alternative, centralized platform, DTCC's Insurance Information Exchange (IIEX), to securely source, consume and transact data for all insurance product types.

There are many advantages to implementing IIEX, a centralized, data exchange platform, in the insurance and retirement industry. Here are some major benefits to consider:

Creates Time Efficiencies

IIEX reduces the need to exchange data via multiple methods and provides the user with the ability to quickly access the latest or recognize missing data.

Allows for Focus Shifts

Teams with access to IIEX can reduce their inquiry phone calls, leaving more time to focus on client relationships, up-selling and new sales.

Promotes Data-Driven Decisions

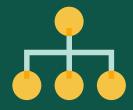

Firms using IIEX can make holistic, data-driven decisions using latest data, identified missing data components, data analytics, APIs and more.

Supports Risk Mitigation

IIEX's one, secure location for standardized data that is PII masked by default, supports risk mitigation while still allowing for permissioning options defined by user.

Ability to Quickly Expand Business

Firms can quickly expand business using IIEX in different departments across the firm with unlimited users and self-managed administration.
